

NOMINATION FOR THE 2022 WOLF PRIZE

INSTRUCTIONS FOR NOMINATING CANDIDATES IN ARCHITECTURE

---

The Wolf Prizes in the sciences and the arts are awarded annually since 1978 to outstanding scientists and artists for their achievements for the benefit of humanity and brotherly relations among people, regardless of nationality, race, color, religion, sex, or political views. To date, 354 scientists and artists from all over the world have been awarded the prestigious Wolf Prize.

Prize fields in sciences include Agriculture, Chemistry, Mathematics, Medicine, and Physics. Prize fields in the Arts include Architecture, Music, Painting and Sculpture. Every year, the Wolf Foundation awards four prizes in the Sciences and one prize in the Arts. Each prize consists of a diploma and 100,000$. In the event of co-recipients sharing one prize, the honorarium is equally divided among them.

Previous Wolf Prize laureates in architecture include Arc. Moshe Safdie, Arc. David Chipperfield, Arc. Phyllis Lambert, Arc. Eduardo Souto de Mouro, Arc. Peter Eisenman, Arc. Ralph Erskine, Arc. Fumihiko Maki, Arc. Jean Nouvel, Arc. Giancarlo De Carlo, Arc. Álvaro Siza, Arc. Frank O. Gehry, Arc. Aldo Van Eyck, Arc. Frei Otto, Arc. Denys Lasdun, and Arc. Jorn Utzon.

PROCESS OF NOMINATION

GENERAL

1. In accordance with the Wolf Prize principle of rotation, candidate(s) for the 2022 prize can be nominated only in one of the following five fields: Agriculture, Chemistry, Mathematics, Physics, and Architecture.
2. One, two or three candidates may be nominated to receive the prize. Joint nomination recognizes collaborative work or work contributing similarly or additively to the same field. In this case, each candidate should be nominated using a separate form, with the jointly filed candidate mentioned in the appropriate place. If a joint nomination is for collaborative work, please state this at the beginning of the "Brief Description" section. Please specify the contribution of each candidate to their joint achievement.
3. A Nominator may submit more than one nomination package.

4. An international Prize Committee makes the selection of the Wolf prize Laureates. Committee decisions are final and irrevocable.
